Trail Description:

The Ice Beds Trail leaves from the southwest corner (near the entrance) of the parking lot following blue blazes. After crossing over a brook, the trail climbs several switchbacks to the top of a knoll at 0.2 miles. Here a spur trail to the left leads to views of the northwestern side of the White Rocks Cliffs. Continuing on the main trail for another 0.1 miles, there are other vista openings on the left that view the cliffs and the valley to the south. The trail then descends and meets an old woods road. Bearing left, the trail follows the old road downhill and crosses a stream. From here the trail follows the stream around to the base of the talus pile of massive rocks. Deep within this pile lie the ice beds. Please practice Leave No Trace ethics, such as carry out what you carry in

- In the winter, ice forms deep within the recesses of the rock pile. Protected, the ice lasts late into the summer and slowly melts. All summer long a draft of cool air and a stream of 40⁰ F water flow down the ravine from the rock pile.
